Nazis Admit Breaks Made In German Lines By Surging Soviets

ing back before the Soviet onslaughts, and Russian bombers and dive-bombers wreaked havoc on the enemy's communication lines.

Getting back to the battle for Cherbourg, the Germans appeared to be concentrating their main forces right around the port. There the Americans met their stiffest opposition. To the east, the Yanks had pinned down the Nazi formations on the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, while to the west the United States troops probed for an opening in the enemy defenses. The assault on the port was begun after the Germans had ignored an ultimatum to surrender. When the time-limit expired, the Allied air forces blasted the city's defenses with a 1,000-plane concentrated attack, in which some planes fired "at pistol range" against the German pillboxes and concrete fortifications.

Big Guns Roar

Coinciding with this, an 80-minute pulverizing artillery barrage was turned against the enemy garrison.

The air war from British bases, meantime, was highlighted by a heavy night raid by Royal Air Force heavy bombers against key points in the German-controlled French railway system. Among the targets hit were the railroad yards at Reims and Laon, where the object was to destroy enemy rolling stock and block the movement of German traffic through the junctions.

Block-buster-laden Mosquito bombers attacked the Nazi port of Hamburg, while other British craft placed mines in enemy-held waters.

Seven heavy bombers failed to return from the Reims-Laon raids, but no planes were missing after the Hamburg operation.

In Italy, the Fifth and Eighth armies met stiffening enemy resistance, as German rearwards sought to interfere with the Allied advance and enable the main Nazi forces to withdraw to their "Gothic Line" for a possible stand. Nevertheless, the Americans drove to within seven miles of the Tyrrhenian coastal town of Follonica while the Britons crossed the Chienti river on the Adriatic flank.

The drives put Allied spearheads within 25 miles of Ancona, Adriatic port, and about 55 miles from Livorno, major port across the Italian mainland from Ancona.

To the People of this Community

If an election were held this month to determine whether your men in uniform should come home victorious sooner you would vote "yes".

Wouldn't you? In a way, your community is holding such an election now—an election to back the attack with more War Bonds.

Every person has a chance, a duty to vote "yes" by investing right now at least $100 in cash in War Bonds.

That money will be put into more planes, tanks and guns and everything necessary to make the invasion successful and to reduce the cost of lives of this community's fighting men.

Vote in the Fifth War Loan election today. Every War Bond is a ballot of freedom. It is a sure way of backing the attack—voluntarily in the American way and for the American way.

No man or woman can point to his payroll buying and say, "They don't mean me." No man or woman can say, "I am already lending 10%, 15%, 20%—I'm doing enough." If you think you are doing enough read today's war dispatches. Buying extra Bonds is the easiest part of the invasion.

THE EDITOR.

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN FLOCK TO NYLON SALE

GREENSBORO, N. C., June 23.—Thousands of bare-legged women milled around the Greensboro post office for the public sale of 5,000 pair of genuine nylon hose at standard prices.

U. S. Marshal Edney Ridge announced the almost non-existent, highly-prized fancy leg dress for milady would be sold at ceiling prices ranging from a top of $1.65 for firsts down to $1 a pair for seconds.

Marshal Ridge conducted the sale under a federal court order directing disposition of the hose which Federal Judge J. J. Hayes said were stolen and later woven for black market sale.

Under the order directing the sale, no person was allowed more than three pair.

Marshal Ridge said that since the order had been revealed, "I've received about $10,000 in mail orders from folk all over the country."

"Now my office has got another big job on its hands in mailing all the money back."

WOMAN RECOMMENDED AS GROVEPORT POSTMASTER

Mrs. Martha Fobbe has been recommended to postal officials in Washington for the postmastership at Groveport to succeed Senter Rarey, who became the center of controversy when he was appointed to that position late in May and who resigned about a week after his appointment, because of ill health.

Mrs. Fobbe is reported to be the sister-in-law of Warren L. Rarey, Democratic committeeman from Groveport and a brother of Senter Rarey.

Wife Preservers

Save every bit of paper around the house and give to the government. It goes into the waterproof linings for crates conveying sterilizers, X-ray transformers, operating tables, etc. for battlefield hospitals. Even waste paper that is soiled from having been wrapped around meat, and ink from old letters and postcards makes no difference. No bit of paper is too small to be of use in the job of packaging supplies.

Epic Battle May Speed Japs' Fall

afforded this force by the anti-aircraft artillery of the escorting battleships, cruisers and destroyers that the entire Pacific ocean to the gates of Japan is its stamping ground. Thus it has become the most mobile strategic air force yet seen in warfare."

The enemy fleet which was soundly defeated by hundreds of carrier planes from task force 58 probably represented one-fourth of the Jap imperial fleet. It consisted of five battleships, five or six carriers, five fleet tankers and attached cruisers and destroyers.

Sunk in the historic battle were one Jap carrier of the Hayataka class and three tankers. Ships heavily damaged included a battleship, three carriers, a cruiser, three destroyers and two tankers.

With this force, the Japs believed they could prevent the loss of their important Mariana island base of Saipan, the southern portion of which, including the vital Asito airdrome, is securely in the hands of United States Marines and Army troops who now are exerting heavy pressure northward on what remains of the initial enemy garrison of more than 20,000 troops.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, clearly stated the importance of Saipan to the enemy, and its equal importance to the Pacific fleet.

He explained that the airdrome, which is now in operation after Seabees did a fast and competent repair job, means land-based air cover for the American amphibious forces on Saipan and also patrol searches into the Pacific by the land-based aircraft, relieving Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes of these duties.

The Japs' first attempt to relieve their hard-pressed Saipan garrison was decisively smashed by Mitscher's airmen who inflicted a number of previous humiliating defeats on the enemy.

Forty-nine of Mitscher's airmen were shot down in Monday's battle but an undetermined number of them were rescued from the water.

Heavy units of Admiral Spruance's Fifth fleet apparently did not get a crack at the Japs who turned tail and fled during the night toward the channel between Formosa and Luzon in the Philippines.

Meanwhile, on Saipan the U. S. Marines and Army troops pressed forward more than a mile northward along the shore of Magicienne bay to the town of Laulau and a similar distance up Mt. Tapotchau in the center of the island.

Mt. Tapotchau, an extinct volcano which rises to a height of 1,554 feet, was honeycombed with Japanese gun emplacements, but heavy shelling by Army artillery and big naval guns of the Fifth Fleet standing offshore was believed to have broken the back of enemy resistance.

Once Mt. Tapotchau is reduced the American ground forces will have easier going since they then will command the northern slopes of the Jap lines and place the island's principal city of Garapan in jeopardy. Garapan, with an estimated population of 10,000 is situated half way up the west coast of the 13-mile long island.

An indication of the all-out offensive to subdue Saipan, only 1,500 miles southeast of Tokyo and one of the last remaining key strongholds of the Japanese inner-island defense perimeter, was given in Admiral Nimitz' Pacific fleet headquarters communique No. 60.

"Heavy pressure is being maintained night and day against en-measure with no delay anticipated.

An effort may be made in the senate to pass the house-approved bill to exempt insurance companies from the anti-trust laws and assure their continued regulation by the states. It is not considered "must."

The senate also may be asked to concur in house amendments on a bill giving foot soldiers on combat duty a maximum of $10 additional monthly pay for "efficiency" in their work, with $5 payments to qualifying infantrymen not in the front lines. The house also passed a bill giving glider borne troops 50 percent additional "hazard bonuses."

The two chambers completed action yesterday on five big appropriation measures:

Agriculture, $24 million; lend-lease, approximately four billion; labor-federal security, one billion 114 million; District of Columbia, sixty-nine million; war agencies, one billion.

The six months' session broken by the recess was marked by whole-hearted backing of the war, sporadic revolts against the administration and sectional quarrels.

WIFE GAINS DIVORCE

Edith Russell was granted a divorce from John Russell in Common Pleas court, Thursday, on grounds of neglect. The suit which was filed three years ago says the parties are parents of 11 children, four of whom are minors and were given into the custody of the father. Edith Russell was assessed the cost of the case.

emy troop concentrations and defense works by our aircraft, army and marine artillery, and naval gunfire," the communique said.

The communique also announced that a strong pocket of enemy resistance at Nafutan point on the extreme southeastern tip of Saipan has been "reduced by one half, and our forces have gained the height of Mount Nafutan."

The American lines which now extend from the outskirts of Garapan on the west coast to Laulau on the northern shores of Magicienne bay on the east coast have been pressed forward steadily since the initial landings nine days ago.

Occupation of the heights of Mt. Nafutan and mention of Laulau in communique No. 60 indicates that the American assault forces now have almost complete control of the shores of Magicienne bay, which might be a good anchorage for our ships.

can get Wallace on the ticket if he really insists. They say there are three possibilities:

1. Nomination of Wallace if Mr. Roosevelt says "or else," as he did in 1940 when his spokesmen said he would decline the nomination if Wallace were not nominated.
2. Nomination of Barkley if Mr. Roosevelt says: "I want Wallace, but—"
3. Nomination of Barkley if Mr. Roosevelt says he will accept the convention's choice.

The handful of presidential advisers, said to be headed by Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, who favor a Republican as a fourth term running-mate for Mr. Roosevelt, are getting no support from congressional leaders. Capitol Democrats are scenting another Roosevelt victory with the war going well both in Europe and in the Pacific. Consequently, congressional Democrats oppose giving away the second best political plum to a Republican—even at the loss of a "unity ticket" slogan.

Passenger traffic on American railroads was almost four times as great in 1943 as in 1939.

against the French patriots of the Vercors and the Ain regions, "without succeeding in overcoming them."

"Resistance forces have been compelled to withdraw at various points after inflicting losses on the enemy," said the official announcement, which added:

"Elements of several German divisions and a large number of local defense troops are estimated to have been contained inside France by the action of the resistance forces."

"Numerous" engagements were reported from the Pyrenees, the Vosges, the Marne, the Ardennes, the Aisne and the Creuse regions.

Passage of Nazi reinforcements bound to the Normandy front were effectively hindered by "outs" on the railways and obstacles placed on the roads. Many bridges were destroyed by the patriots in the Bordeaux region, and railway cuts also were reported through the Rhone valley and in Brittany, the Loiret, Aisne and the area north of Paris.

Strong resistance forces occupied several localities in the departments of the Jura, Ain and Haute Savoie, but after four days of bitter fighting were compelled to evacuate one of these towns. Before quitting the community, though, the patriots demolished railway bridges, locomotives and telephone lines.

German losses were described as "heavy."

"The systematic disorganization of enemy transport by the FFI has contributed directly to the success of Allied operations in Normandy," the communique concluded.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Private James Stoker is visiting his mother, Mrs. C. V. Stebleton, of New Holland. He has been in army service for the last 14 months, part of this time being spent in the Italian war theatre.

Robert Wallace, son of Mrs. Harriet Wallace, East Main street, and husband of Mrs. Mary Katherine Pile Wallace, Edison avenue, has as his new address: ASN 150770930, Section I-7, Class 44-32, Tyndall Field, Fla.

Corporal Robert J. Goeller, of Camp Cook, Cal., is spending a 17-day furlough with his mother, Mrs. William A. Goeller, 634 South Court street.

Clarence Allison, seaman 2/c, of the U. S. Navy, has returned to Boston after spending two days with his family of 415 East Union street. He had just returned from Bermuda. He is now ready for overseas duty and is serving on a destroyer escort. Mail will reach him if addressed: Clarence Allison a 2/c, U.S.S. Suesens, D. E. 342, Fleet Postoffice, New York, N. Y.

A/C Paul Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters, 111 East Water street, has returned to Iowa Pre-Flight, Iowa City, Ia., after spending a leave with his parents. He is in training in the Naval Air Corps.

Private Chester Wertman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wertman, Washington township, has a new overseas address: Pvt. Chester Wertman ASN 35629272, APO 487, New York, N. Y. His parents have just received a letter from him saying that he is somewhere in Burma. He would appreciate mail from his friends.

Cecil Trump of Jackson township writes home from somewhere in England that he had been there for some time and had seen two boys from Circleville, but did not mention their names. He had visited several cities and on a bicycle trip had visited several farmers working in their fields.

Richard Babb, of near Washington C. H., son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Babb, at one time residents of Circleville, recently enlisted in the Army Air Force Reserve, in Cincinnati.

Corporal William Hoskins, Jr., has returned to Barnes General Hospital, Vancouver, Wash., after a visit with his wife, Mrs. Phyllis Ater Hoskins, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hoskins, of near Atlanta.

CARL E. MARTIN GETS AWARD IN SOUTH PACIFIC

WITH U. S. SOUTH PACIFIC ARMY FORCES, June 23—Lieutenant General Millard F. Harmon, commanding U. S. Army Forces in the South Pacific, announced the award of the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of an additional Air Medal on June 6, 1944 to First Lieutenant Carl E. Martin, 408 East Union street, Circleville, O., as co-pilot from February 18 to April 14, 1944.

A bronze Oak Leaf Cluster is awarded for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained combat operational missions of a hazardous nature during which enemy opposition is met, or during which an area is traversed where enemy anti-aircraft fire is effective or where enemy fighter patrols are habitually encountered. The missions for which the award was given were with the 13th AAF.

U. S. PLANE SAVED
FERDALE, Pa.—The appearance of six British Spitfires was credited with saving the plane piloted over northern France by Capt. George B. Simler, of Ferndale, after it was hit by flak and fell out of formation. Simler wrote that the English ships "appeared almost out of nowhere" and escorted his plane to safety.

OPEN AIR SHOWER
TULAGI—A brook that cascades down through an opening between the rocky cliffs on the shore of this island has been converted into a shower by enterprising sailors of a Navy unit here. A pipe has been run into the brook, its open end emerging about eight feet above the ground. Here the bluejackets take a cooling shower.

Murphy Store Passes Sales Quota In Fifth War Loan Campaign

One Fifth War Loan goal has been exceeded in Circleville today. The G. C. Murphy store, whose quota was set by the company at $5,800, has sold $9,650 in bonds, according to Miss Lena Wilson, chairman of the solicitors in the local store. Sales efforts continue and store employees hope to double their quota.

Employees of the Penney store also are confident of being able to reach their goal of $10,000 as they already have $6,653 toward it. In addition to the solicitation in the store, the J. C. Penney company has subscribed to $4,000 in Series C tax bonds which will be credited to the county quota.

Clark Will, war finance chairman, and T. O. Gilliland and J. Wallace Crist, co-chairmen of the Fifth War Loan Drive, asked their campaign workers Thursday to give added attention to their solicitations if they expect to reach their goal. No sales figures are available as practically every solicitor is awaiting completion of his sales effort before making a return. Turn in sales to captains at once, is the urgent appeal of the chairmen.

Boyd Stout, captain of a section of the project sponsored by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, with Don Henkle as chair-

GUADALCANAL—The typically American pastime of horseshoe pitching is one of the favorite sports for Marines all through the Solomons. Many officers as well as enlisted men are devotees of "barnyard" golf. In several camps there are periodic championship tournaments, while others have one or more horseshoe leagues going in full swing.

PIN-WORMS Now can be Beaten!

The miseries of Pin-Worms have been known for centuries, and many doctors have sought a way to deal with this dreadful pest that lives and grows inside the human body.

Today, thanks to an important scientific discovery, a new and highly effective treatment is being hailed by medical authorities. It is based on a remarkable drug known as gentian violet. This drug is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm tablet developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. B. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines.

P-W makes it unnecessary for you or your child to suffer in silence with the embarrassing rectal itch caused by Pin-Worms, or to take chances on the real distress they often create. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to destroy Pin-Worms.

So watch for possible warning signs such as: itching seat and nose, uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting. If you suspect Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for a package of P-W and follow the simple directions carefully.

It is easy to remember: P-W for Pin-Worms!

AFRICA NATIVE SPEAKS BEFORE SOCE ASSEMBLY

At the final session of the Southeast Ohio Christian Education convention Thursday afternoon at the United Brethren church Willie Fitzjohn, a native of West Africa, talked at length of the good American missionaries are doing in his native country in educational and religious work, praised the Americans for their love of country, but said that he, too, was proud of his native country. The white missionaries teach brotherly love, but he said that race discrimination in America almost gives the lie to their teaching. Mr. Fitzjohn is a graduate of the Albert academy and a former teacher there. Since coming to the United States he has graduated from the Lincoln university at Lincoln, Pa., and is now a student at the seminary of the United Brethren church at Dayton.

The Rev. O. W. Stockman of New Lexington, presided at the morning session at which the Rev. S. C. Poling, Lancaster, talked on "The Church and National Life" and the Rev. E. B. White of Portsmouth gave some information to the young people of the work that is being done in many rural and mining communities in vacation Bible schools.

Services, at which ten young persons were consecrated to the work of the church, five offering themselves for full time Christian Service, was in the charge of the Rev. P. E. Wright, D. D., of Lancaster, a member of the Board of the Southeast conference and an adult director.

Another speaker on the afternoon program was the Rev. C. S. Metzler, former pastor of the Pickaway U. B. circuit and now located at Jackson, who spoke on "A Faithful Stewardship."

The Rev. J. E. Huston, local pastor, expressed himself as exceedingly well pleased with the results of the convention. Circleville is in about the center of the Southeast conference.

GETTING STARTED

THAT American front on the Cherbourg peninsula, so far, seems to be a pretty small chunk of territory in comparison with the tremendous sweep of Russian conquest when those Allies get going. The Russians surge forward over a front of a thousand miles, and often measure their immediate advances in hundreds.

The situations, however, are very different. The Russian armies have a vast territory in which to operate, mostly plains which offer few obstructions. France, our present battleground, is comparatively small, with a varied terrain and obstacles of many kinds to contend with. The Allies were obliged for strategic reasons to start the invasion there, against an enemy who had time to prepare and was well fortified.

Such a military invasion is like cracking a very tough nut. And the Allies are cracking it, slowly but surely. When they get through that peninsula the going will be easier. The mere fact that they are slowly and steadily conquering it in such a forthright way is an omen of disaster to the enemy.

NAZIS WANT GENTLENESS

THE Nazis believe in education, and are trying it out on the French. French stories for boys are now forbidden to speak of blood or fighting. Boxing, a sport in which the French produced such a fighter as George Carpentier, the heavy-weight who threatened Jack Dempsey in his prime, is now banned as "too cruel." Evidently the French, "one of the most warlike races in Europe," are to be educated into peace and resignation. It would be very convenient for their German rivals.

This Nazi confidence in the power of education suggests that something might come of turning it on themselves. Given the foundation of a resounding defeat, a thorough course of education might head off Germany from making war on Europe for a third time.

TIME TO BE STIFF

"KINDLY catch this gang of purse-snatchers." So a police chief recently instructed his men, thereby winning for himself much derision. There seems to be a time for brusquerie as well as a time for courtesy.

A successful police force must have a good deal of the military element. It is hard enough anyway to keep up discipline without complicating matters by apparent laxity at the top. Many ordinary civilian amenities have to go.

Imagine a top sergeant saying to his men, "Kindly fall in."

Many in Capital Head Much Hip-Hip-Hurrahing
For G. O. P. Convention To Be Absent This Year

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Half of official Washington is packing its bags for Chicago and the gathering there on June 26 of the Republican hopefuls. Despite the cut and dried program that awaits the delegates, and the prospect of news scarcity in the goings on there, many newspapers sent their correspondents out a week before the opening day.

I've been wondering about the mood of the convention. Would it be the usual compound of bands, waving flags, back-slapping favorite sons and smoke-filled rooms? I called Robert Prichard, the Republican national committee's Number Two man at the job of selling the country the virtues of the G. O. P., and asked about the prospect of good cheer at his convention.

"The theme of the convention will be patriotism," said Prichard. "We are going to cut down the number of bands. Of course, there will be music. But none of the old-time hurrah."

Flags? Yes! Elephants? Absolutely not. Tied to a string and being led around to whip up the crowd? No, sir-ee! It isn't going to be necessary to have party mascots this time. This isn't a circus we are putting on. We've got real business to transact."

All convention speeches will be shorter than ever before, Prichard promised. Seconding speeches will be limited to 15 minutes. Former President Herbert Hoover is allowed a speech of 45 minutes. Mrs. Claire Luce, who some people think may stampede the convention and get herself nominated for the vice presidency, will talk for 30 minutes.

Hoover and Mrs. Luce have already sent their speeches in to the Republican national committee, where they are being peppered up or flattened out as the need calls. How long Governor Warren of California will talk is as yet uncertain. He hasn't yet submitted his keynote speech to headquarters.

The Democrats have not gotten down to convention routine. Their

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The argument over the quick-release parachute harness was revived this week by Life Magazine, which contended that the U. S. Army preferred the slower triple-release harness which has to be unfastened over the shoulder and at each thigh.

This argument, however, was settled once and for all by Major Gen. O. P. Echols of the Army Air Forces when he appeared before the House Appropriations Committee.

He was asked by Representative Case, South Dakota Republican, "What is the current policy with regard to the procurement of parachute equipment?"

General Echols replied: "The current policy is to procure the single-point quick release."

Rep. Case: "Is the quick-release parachute regarded as having special value for flying over water?"

Gen. Echols: "Yes."

Rep. Case: "In other respects, is the other type of parachute regarded as useful?"

Gen. Echols: "The quick-release single point, as I am now informed, has some advantages for paratroopers. They can release it with one hand and carry equipment with the other hand. It took them quite some time to arrive at the conclusion."

Most significant part of Gen. Echols' testimony, however, was regarding the Navy.

"The Navy still has the policy of continuing procurement of the present conventional parachute," Echols explained. "They do not like the quick-release chute."

"It would be assumed that more of the Navy flying is done over water than the Army," Rep. Case remarked.

"Yes, sir," replied Echols, and then explained that the Army had to break away from the Navy's policy of buying the old-fashioned three-point release chutes. "The Navy did not agree," he said. "That had something to do with the slowness with which we arrived at a decision."

Questioned by Rep. Case regarding comparative costs, Gen. Echols replied: "The single-release parachute is more costly. But I am quite sure that the cost of the item itself, as compared with the importance of it, is very little and should not be given consideration."

MIX-UP IN SENATORS

Popular Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois received a phone call the other day from the secretary of Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, informing him that Wherry had a $1,000 contribution for Lucas' campaign.

Senator Lucas is up for re-election this year, naturally is receptive to any help from friends. However, he was surprised that he, a Democrat and staunch Administration supporter, should get aid from Senator Wherry of Nebraska, a staunch Republican and bitter Roosevelt critic. Ever since Wherry replaced Senator George Norris, he has relentlessly gunned for Democrats.

So when Lucas encountered Wherry later on the Senate floor, he went up to him and said:

"Where's that thousand dollars you have for my campaign?"

"I don't have any thousand dollars for (Continued on Page Eight)

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"Can you explain how James Haight's endorsement appears on a check you borrowed from J. C. Pettigrew?" continued Prosecutor Bradford.

"I gave it to Jim," admitted Lola.

"When? What date?"

"That same night, December 31st."

"Where?"

"At the house of my sister Nora."

"At the house of your sister Nora. Have you heard the testimony here to the effect that you were not present at the house of your sister Nora during the New Year's Eve party?"

"Yes."

"Well, were you or weren't you?"

"I did stop at the house for a few minutes, but I wasn't at the party."

"I see. Were you invited to the party?"

"Yes."

"But you didn't go?"

"No."

"Why not?"

Judge Martin objected, and Judge Newbold sustained him.

"Did anyone see you but your brother-in-law, the defendant?"

"No. I went around to the back door of the kitchen."

"Did you know Jim Haight was in the kitchen?" asked Carter Bradford quickly.

Lola grew pink. "Yes, I hung around outside in the back yard till I saw, through the kitchen window, that Jim came in. He disappeared in the butler's pantry, and I thought there might be someone with him. But after a few minutes I decided he was alone, and knocked. Jim came out of the pantry to the kitchen door, and we talked."

"About what, Miss Wright?"

Lola glanced at Judge Martin. He made as if to rise, then sank back.

"I gave Jim the check."

Ellery was leaning far forward. So that had been Lola's mission! He had not been able to overhear, or see, what had passed between Jim and Lola at the back door of Nora's kitchen that night.

"You gave him the check," said Bradford courteously. "Miss Wright, did the defendant ask you to give him money?"

"No."

"But didn't you borrow the hundred dollars from Mr. Pettigrew for the purpose of giving it to the defendant?"

"Yes," said Lola coolly. "Only it was in repayment of a debt I owed Jim. I owe everybody, you see—chronic borrower."

And Ellery recalled that night when he had trailed Jim to Lola's apartment in Low Village, and how Jim had demanded money and Lola had said she didn't have any...

Only it wasn't true that, on New Year's Eve, Lola had repaid a "debt." Lola had made a donation to Nora's happiness.

Bradford continued, "Miss Wright, did Haight ask you for the money you said you owed him?"

Lola said, too quickly. "No, he didn't."

"You just decided suddenly, on the last day of the year, that you'd better pay him back—without any suggestion from him?"

Objection. Argument. Heat now. Judge Newbold excused the jury.

Bradford said sternly to Judge Newbold: "Your Honor, it is important to the People to show that this witness, herself in badly reduced circumstances, was somehow induced by the defendant to get money for him, thus indicating his basic character, how desperate he was for money—all part of the People's case to show his gain motive for the poisoning."

The jury was brought back. Bradford went to Lola once more, with savage persistence. But Judge Martin was not beaten. On cross-examination he sailed in almost with joy.

"Miss Wright," began the old lawyer, "you have testified in direct examination that on the night of New Year's Eve last you called at the back door of your sister's house. What time was that visit, do you recall?"

"Yes, I looked at my wrist watch, because I had a party of my own to go to in town. It was just before midnight—fifteen minutes before the New Year was rung in."

"You also testified that you saw your brother-in-law go into the butler's pantry and, after a moment or two, you knocked and he came out to you, and you talked. Where exactly did that conversation take place?"

"At the back door of the kitchen."

"What did you say to Jim?"

"I asked him what he was doing, and he said he had been mixing a lot of Manhattan cocktails for the crowd—he'd about got to the marshmallows when I knocked, he said. Then I told him about the check."

"Did you see the cocktails he referred to?"

The room rustled like an agitated aviary, and Carter Bradford leaned forward, frowning. This was important—this was the time the poisoning must have taken place. After that ripple of sound, the courtroom was very still.

"No," said Lola. "Jim had come from the direction of the pantry to answer the door, so I know that where he'd been mixing the cocktails. From where I was standing, at the back door, I couldn't see into the pantry. So of course I couldn't see the cocktails, either."

"Ah! Miss Wright, had someone sneaked into the kitchen from the main hall or the dining room while you and Mr. Haight were talking at the back door, would you have been able to see that person?"

"No. The door from the dining room doesn't open into the kitchen; it leads directly into the pantry. And while the door from the hall does open into the kitchen and is visible from the back door, I couldn't see it because Jim was standing in front of me, blocking my view."

"In other words, Miss Wright, while you and Mr. Haight were talking—Mr. Haight with his back to the rest of the kitchen, you unable to see most of the kitchen because he was blocking your view—someone could have slipped into the kitchen through the hall door, crossed to the pantry, and retraced his steps without either of you being aware of what had happened or who it had been?"

"That's correct."

"Or someone could have entered the pantry through the dining room during that period, and neither you nor Mr. Haight could have seen him?"

"Of course we couldn't have seen him."

"How long did this conversation at the back door take?"

committee on arrangements met in Chicago June 15 and 16. At the moment there are still some delegates unnamed.

But things will whip up in no time and as for that choice of vice presidential nominee—why, anything can happen.

Some people think the northern Democrats can be made to agree with the southern, the eastern, the middle western, the northwestern and the western Democrats (big country this), and line Henry A. Wallace up for vice president.

Some people—not Democrats—say Mr. Roosevelt has the convention—and the country—and the world—on the spot and can get anything done he wants done. Anyhow the vice presidential nomination will be the only fun the Democratic meeting of mid-July will provide.

I asked Miss Virginia Rishel, who gets out the Democratic Digest, official publication of the Democratic national committee, if she thought her party's Chicago meeting would be a merry one.

"Oh, no!" said the wise Virginia. "On the contrary, Hannegan, our national chairman, has passed the word down the line. 'We've got to get down to work at once, get the work done and get out as fast as possible. This is no time for skylarking or cheering!'"

Speaking of the international influence, I suppose there will be a lot said in words of many syllables at both conventions about "our foreign policy."

Well, it is not surprising that we have no concrete foreign policy. Actually most of the people in this country aren't interested in a foreign policy simply because most of the people in this country are not interested in foreign countries.

It will take a powerful amount of sales talk to persuade half the country that the troubles and hates of Europe, Asia and Africa are our responsibility forevermore. And it isn't impeding the war effort to say this.

I still hope, maybe it is a Pollyannish wish, but I don't apologize for it, that some day some genius will sell the world the idea of the stupidity of war. Could anything be more imbecile than the way we killed, maimed and starved the Italians when they were fighting with the Nazis, and then suddenly changed to loving, feeding, arming and clothing the Italians the moment we captured Rome?

Before the war is over we may be killing Italians once more. Four-legged animals aren't half as dumb as we, the two-legged creatures provided by nature with what is supposed to be a thinking mind. Four-legged animals fight only when they have to and when they are mad.

On the Stupidity Of War

25 YEARS AGO

Dr. A. H. McCray, son of Mrs. Fannie McCray, of Madison township, died at St. John's hospital,

"Oh, five minutes, I should think." "That will be all, thank you," said defense counsel triumphantly. Carter Bradford climbed to his feet for a redirect examination. The courtroom was whispering, and the jury looked thoughtful.

"Miss Wright, did anyone enter the pantry either through the kitchen or the dining room while you were conversing at the back door with Jim Haight?"

"I don't know. I merely said someone could have, and we wouldn't have known the difference."

"Then you can't really say that someone did?"

"I can't say someone did, but by the same token I can't say someone didn't."

"But you didn't see anyone enter the pantry, and you did see Jim Haight come out of the pantry?"

"Yes, but—"

"And you saw Jim Haight go back into the pantry?"

"No such thing," said Lola with asperity. "I turned around and went away, leaving Jim at the door."

"That's all," said Carter softly; he even tried to help her off the stand, but Lola drew herself up and went back to her chair haughtily.

"I should like," said Carter to the Court, "to recall one of my previous witnesses. Frank Lloyd."

Then Frank Lloyd took the stand for only a few minutes. The substance of his testimony was that he now recalled an important fact which he had forgotten in previous testimony. Jim Haight had not been the only one out of the living room during the time he was mixing the last batch of cocktails before midnight. There had been one other.

Q.—And who was that, Mr. Mr. Lloyd?

A.—A guest of the Wrights'. Mr. Ellery Smith.

A.—Yes. He didn't return until Haight came back with the tray of cocktails and started passing them around.

This is it, thought Mr. Queen. Carter Bradford turned around and looked directly into Ellery's eyes.

"I call," said the Prosecutor with a snap in his voice, "Ellery Smith."

As Mr. Ellery Queen left his seat, crossed the courtroom, took the oath, and sat down in the witness chair, his mind was not occupied with Prosecutor Bradford's unuttered questions or his own unuttered answers...

Another conviction crept into his consciousness as he answered the first few routine questions about his name, occupation, connection with the Wright family, and so on; and it arose from Prosecutor Carter Bradford himself.

Bradford was speaking impersonally; but there was a bitterness about his speech that was not part of the words he was uttering. Cart was remembering that this lean, quiet-eyed man was an author of more than books—he was the author of Mr. Bradford's romantic troubles, too.

Suddenly the witness saw how he could make the truth work for Jim Haight!

The X-ray has taught us a great deal about the true physiology of the average case of constipation and ruined some of the older notions. If a barium meal is followed through the digestive tract of a constipated person it will be seen in four out of five instances to pass out of the stomach and through the small intestine at exactly the same rate as that of a normal control. After every part of a meal has left the small intestine and entered the large intestine, it normally requires about sixteen hours for it to traverse the entire length and come to rest in the sigmoid colon, and this schedule is no different in four out of five self-styled constipated individuals than in normal ones.

70 Attend Rotary-Ann Party At Country Club

William C. Craig Speaks After Fine Dinner

SOCIAL CALENDAR

About 70 gathered Thursday at the Pickaway Country Club for the Summer Rotary-Ann party. Rotarians entertaining their wives at a delightful chicken dinner followed by an excellent program.

Dr. William C. Craig, instructor of speech and head of the department of dramatics at Capital university, was guest speaker and the feature of the entertainment was his talk on "Why We Laugh."

Almost continuous laughter marked the course of his comments. He closed his talk with a fitting tribute to U. S. fighting forces, "who are doing such noble work in their effort to preserve for us and to restore to the world the privilege and the ability to enjoy the relaxation that laughter brings."

Summer flowers in lovely arrangements were used on the tables on the large porch of the club home, where the guests were served.

Carl Leist, song leader for the Rotarians, acted as master of ceremonies, leading the group in singing old favorites. For some tunes, he used words fitting to the occasion, that he had composed.

After the planned program, the guests were entertained at lively games, fine prizes being awarded for scores.

Rhynard-Drum Nuptials

Miss Jane Marie Drum, youngest daughter of Mrs. John J. Drum, of 215 West Mound street, became the bride of Sergeant Lloyd George Rhynard, of Hot Springs, Ark., Saturday in the rectory of St. John's Catholic church, of that city. The Rev. Fr. Charles B. McCoy officiated at the service at 3 p. m.

For her marriage, the bride chose a navy blue dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations, sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

Corporal and Mrs. James Driden, of Hot Springs, were attendants at the wedding.

Mrs. Drum, who accompanied her daughter to Arkansas, entertained the bridal party at dinner at Jack Tar Hotel after the ceremony. White gardenias were worn by the bride's mother.

The new Mrs. Rhynard is a graduate of Circleville high school and has been associated with Kissing Beauty Salon, South Sixth street, Columbus.

Sgt. Rhynard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Rhynard, of Rosburg, O., was graduated in 1933 from a high school at Manitoba, Canada. He attended Ohio State university, where he was a student in the college of industrial engineering.

A member of a ground crew of the U. S. Army Air Force, Sgt. Rhynard was stationed in Alaska for two years, being recently transferred to Hot Springs. He is expecting a furlough soon to visit relatives and friends in Central Ohio.

Corporal Driden, who served as Sgt. Rhynard's attendant at the wedding, was with him in service in Alaska.

Darbyville W. S. C. S.

The W. S. C. S. of Darbyville Methodist church met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ernestine Dudleson of that community. Ten members were present for the meeting that was in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Downs, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Flowers.

Many different topics of interest were discussed by the members.

A delightful lunch was served by Mrs. Dudleson at the close of the social hour.

The next meeting, July 19, will be at 8 p. m., at the township house.

Business Women's Club

Business and Professional Women's club held its last session of the season Thursday in the club rooms, Masonic temple. ## The Power of Simple Living

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 25 is Daniel 1:8-16, 19, 20, the Golden Text being Daniel 1:8, "But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties, nor with the wine which he drank.")

NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S first conquest of Judah was in 607 B. C., and the events that transpired in our lesson today must have taken place during some time in between 607 and 604. Nebuchadnezzar and his soldiers took many captives back to Babylon with them, and among them were young boys. The king spoke to the master of his eunuchs telling him that he wished to have certain Jewish youths chosen for their beauty and intelligence, to be specially trained, so that they might "stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans."

It is thought possible that the language they were to be taught was the Accadian, which was to the Babylonian world what Latin was to Europe in the middle ages. At any rate, it was the language in which the lore of the Chaldean sages is stored up.

Four Are Chosen

Four young men were so chosen—Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. The prince of the eunuchs gave them different names which were Belteshazzar, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego. They were to be fed from the king's own table which was furnished with all sorts of rich foods, meats, wines, etc.

Now these boys had been strictly brought up in the Jewish tradition, and Daniel made up his mind that he would not eat of the foods nor drink of the wines. He talked to the prince of the eunuchs, who loved him, and asked that he might not defile himself. Why did he think such foods would defile him? He might have been afraid that the foods were in some way connected with idolatry, or that he would be expected to eat some meats that his people regarded unclean.

The prince of eunuchs said he was afraid of the king's displeasure, for the king expected the boys to grow strong and handsome on the food served them, and he feared his head would be in danger if he did not serve this luxurious diet to the boys. Then Daniel said to the steward that had them in special charge, would he let them live on pulse and water for ten days, and at the end of that time he could see how this food and drink affected them.

So the steward consented, and the boys were fed what they asked, and at the end of the ten days their "countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children that did eat of the king's meat." It is surmised that the "pulse" was probably a vegetable diet. They continued this diet for the whole time they were being educated as the king wished.

Brought Before the King

"Now at the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them before Nebuchadnezzar.

"And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah; therefore stood they before the king.

"And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm."

The Babylonians possessed a high civilization. They had the elements of the telescope, and a knowledge of the eclipses, and while part of their science is now proved erroneous, yet the wisdom and knowledge they possessed was far from being contemptible.

Two lessons that we may take to heart are suggested by this lesson: The first is the firmness of character displayed by Daniel. He might have been the subject of ridicule, even of persecution because of his determination not to eat the foods and drink the wines that were apportioned him. But he was ready for that if his conscience told him he was in the right.

The second lesson is that of simple living, without the rich foods and especially the wines that might have made him a habitual drinker. Drink causes so much of the world's misery. So many homes are made desolate by it and so many fine people ruin their lives by indulgence in alcoholic beverages, that we cannot feel Christian people should indulge, even moderately. Better leave it strictly alone.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To conserve soap and maintain correct standards for cleanliness, use enough soap in the water to make a 3-inch suds for laundry and a 2-inch suds for dishwashing.

A thin strip of lemon cooked with the apple sauce sharpens up the flavor of the apples and gives a nice flavor.

It is a help when putting on a small child's rubbers or galoshes over broad-heeled shoes, to place a piece of wax paper over the heels. The rubbers will then slide on easily with no danger of tearing the rubber or galosh or the lining thereof.

If you have some old cretonnes that have faded but are strong enough for draperies, or other needed household equipment, you can sometimes achieve an interesting effect by dyeing. The new color will give them freshness, while the old pattern may show through in an interesting and soft way.

If you stitch quilted fabrics with the presser-foot of the machine up instead of down, you will find there is less tendency for the material to bunch under the needle.

A strong solution of ordinary washing soda will soften paint spots on cement. The paint may then be easily scraped off.

PLAN ANNUAL AUDITIONS
With the "Hour of Charm's" quest for a "Singing Cinderella" drawing to a close, the finals being scheduled for the Sunday broadcast, sponsors of the contest are weighing the possibility of making the auditions an annual event. Thousands of letters have been received suggesting this, many of them from the 9,800-odd girls who competed in regional auditions but did not qualify for the semi-finals. They want another opportunity next year, to win a $150-a-week contract with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra.

TO BACK WAR EFFORT
Wheeling's "Musical Steelmakers," though they've left the air for another summer, will be entertaining folks all over the Ohio-West Virginia area in an effort to call attention to the Red Cross War Bond sales, recruiting drives and various other wartime needs. And, of course, the huskies from the mills (and the ladies too) will be putting in many long hours each day turning out war material for invasion use!

REAL COMIC FOILS
When Harry Savoy cast his supporting company for his new NBC Thursday night comedy series, he chose some of the outstanding comic foils in New York. Among them are Jim Backus, starred on many a network series; John Griggs, who's been heard with Colonel Stoopnagle, Jerry Lester and others; Phil Kramer, one of Johnny Morgan's helpers; and the fast-talking Amy Sedell.

RADIO NEWS NOTES
James Melton's music conductor on the tenor star's new series which starts July 2 in the time now occupied by Fred Allen, will be Nat Finston, musical director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures. The program is titled "Music for America" and Melton will have a 12-voice chorus in addition to guest stars each week.
Thanks to the War Loan Drive, Dr. Frank Black, ever-busy maestro, will get a two-week vacation from conducting the NBC Symphony Orchestra on Sundays. Dr. Black will relinquish his baton

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

LEARN BRIDGE FAST
29—Entries and Blockers
IT IS ESSENTIAL to have the lead in one hand or the other—your own or the dummy—a certain number of times. A card which enables you to obtain the lead where you wish it is called an "entry." Suppose your own hand contains a finessing combination like an A-Q-10. You will probably wish to lead toward it twice, once to finesse the 10 and again to finesse the Q. That is impossible unless you have two entries to the dummy. You also may have in the dummy some suit which can be established, but then will require an entry in order to bring in the set-up small cards of it.
As soon as the opening lead is made, one of the essentials to consider is the number of entries needed in one hand or the other. Perhaps enough will be obviously in sight. But often they will not. Study, however, may reveal a way to develop the entries you wish, or show them already to exist, though somewhat concealed.
If you have the ace of the opening suit in one holding, opposite the king in your other hand, you usually will play so as to leave one of those cards where you need an entry most. But suppose you have something like the J-5 in dummy and the K-Q-7 in your hand, the opponent's lead was a small card and third hand played the A, after you put on dummy's 5. You have a chance right there to make the J an entry to dummy, by playing your K or Q under the A.
There are various possible plays of that nature on the first trick, as well as later ones, if you watch for them. Now let's take a case of doubtful entries. A guarded king is a possible but doubtful entry, depending on which defender has the ace. An ace-queen may prove two entries or only one, depending on how the king is located.
ed. Then there are less obvious combinations. Suppose the dummy has a K-10 opposite your A-Q-3. If you positively require two entries to the dummy, finesse the 10 on the first round, and overtake your Q with the K on the second.
Late entries are other possibilities, as when you have the A-K-6-4 opposite the Q-9-8-5. Preserve that 5 carefully if you need three dummy entries. The A will be one, the K will be another and, if you have put the 9 and 8 on these tricks, you can, after scoring the Q, use the 5 to the 6 as another entry.
"Unblocking" is a term used to describe your play of an unnecessarily high card on a trick in order to get out of the way of some lower card in the opposite hand, so that the lower card may become a trick taker and therefore an entry. Here is a case of multiple unblocking, if you needed four entries in the dummy, for purposes of finesses or anything else: A-Q-10-6-2 in the dummy opposite your own K-J-9-5. The first trick of that suit should include both the K and A, the second the Q and the J, the third the 10 and 9, and then the 6 over the 5 could be the fourth entry.
Counting the entries needed can cause you to abandon some plan completely in favor of another. Suppose the dummy has a suit made up of Q-J-10-9-8-2, and your hand contains no card of the suit. If the dummy's only possible entries are two aces, there is no use in trying to set up that suit. One ace would enable you to make a first lead of it, won perhaps by the king. The other ace would make possible a second lead, won by the ace. The suit would now be established, but you could not use its set-up cards because the dummy has no more entries. In that case, find some other use for your two entries in the dummy.

Big Shelter House To Be Constructed At Ted Lewis Park.

BUILDING MAY GET UNDER WAY BEFORE WINTER

Kahns And Second All-Star Girls Team To Appear In Benefit Game

TICKET SALE PLANNED

Board Seeks $1,000 To Add To Generous Gift Of City Celebrity

Ted Lewis park is to have a shelter house, one large enough to accommodate picnic groups, family reunions and other assemblies and that will afford dancing accommodations for the young folk of the city and county. The building will be open except at one end where a stage and orchestra platform will be built. The floor will be of concrete and the roof low and overhanging. Work on the building may get under way this fall.

The $1,000 contribution to the park fund made by Ted Lewis recently will help finance the project. The remainder of the necessary cash will be raised through sales of Park Booster tickets that will admit bearers to one of the most interesting softball games of the year in Central Ohio.

Girls To Play

The Kahn girl team that made such a hit with local citizens when it appeared at the park opening program and gave the local Jaycees a stiff run for their money will be one of the game contestants. The other will be an all-star girls team composed of outstanding players from the district. The game will be staged in July at a date yet to be decided.

More than 100 Circleville men now are participating in the City Softball Game League contests four nights a week at the park. All have agreed to serve as Park Booster ticket salesmen for the girls game. They will be assisted by a group of business and professional men and expect to realize $1,000 from the undertaking.

State law prohibits charging admission to events in public parks, so tickets will be sold in advance and not for admission to the ball game, but for park boosting purposes. And it probably will be well for anyone attending the game to display a Booster ticket.

Armen May Appear

Negotiations now are under way for another ball game later in the season between the Lockbourne Air Base aggregation and a picketed Circleville team. Whether or not Booster Tickets will be sold in advance for this contest has not been decided.

Ted Lewis park is growing rapidly in popularity and picnics and family and group gatherings are held there frequently during each week.

The Catholic church will have an outing at the park a week from Sunday. A committee now is arranging a program for the event which will feature a picnic dinner.

JUNIOR BORROR MISSING AFTER ATTACK ON TRUK

Staff Sergeant Junior Borrer, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Borrer, of Marion, formerly of near Commercial Point, is missing in action over Truk since June 3, the War Department has informed his parents.

A waist gunner on a Flying Fortress, young Borrer had informed his parents in a recent letter that he had completed 35 missions up to May 1.

He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Ebert, of Ashville, and is a graduate of Scioto township school, attended Ohio State University and was employed at Curtis Wright before his enlistment in the Air Corps in November 1941.

REASON TO CROW

DRAVOSBURG, Pa.—A rooster helped reunite Mrs. Gwendolyn Rohs, 20, of Dravosburg, and her three-year-old daughter, Gwendolyn, after a long court battle for the child's custody. When Judge James L. O'Toole learned that a rooster shared the girl's room in her father's home, he favored the mother in his judgment.

you," snapped Wherry in amazement.

"Why, your secretary called and said you had $1,000 for my campaign," declared Lucas. Then, noting the Nebraskan's discomfiture, he added: "Are you holding out on me?"

Flabbergasted, the Nebraska Senator thought a moment and then cleared up the embarrassing mystery.

"That secretary of mine!" he exclaimed. "I told him to call up Rufus, meaning Rufus Holman (Senator from Oregon), and tell him I had $1,000 for his campaign. He must have thought I said Lucas and called you by mistake."

RECOGNITION OF BOLIVIA

U. S. leadership in Latin America struck its lowest ebb this week when it had to bow before other Pan-American countries and promise to recognize the government of Bolivia, which Secretary Hull previously had ostracized.

Inside story of what happened is that Bolivia's neighbors long had been getting restless because of the "I-don't-speak-to-you" policy. Earlier they agreed to snub Bolivia, but with more and more signs of Bolivian-Aligned cooperation, they failed to see the reason for prolonging the cold shoulder.

Finally, Brazilian Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha, now foremost, most forthright Pan-American leader, urged Secretary Hull to remove the ban. When Hull still delayed, Colombia, Brazil and Venezuela notified him that they would recognize Bolivia last Monday.

This put the United States on a serious hot-spot. Quickly, Hull wired his ambassadors to delay Brazilian-Colombian - Venezuelan recognition to the week-end, with the promise that they would then all go along together.

For ten years previously, it was the U. S. A. which took the Pan-American lead.

POLITICS AND FACT

POLITICS—Senator Gerald Nye, frantically running for re-nomination, is telling North Dakota that, by virtue of his powerful position as ranking minority member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, he brought many war projects to his State.

FACT—Real truth is that North Dakota has received far less in war contracts than any other State in the Union. Of the 182 billion dollars in war contracts, North Dakota got only $11,000,000. Next lowest State is Wyoming, with $65,000,000. South Dakota got $76,000,000, Montana got $75,000,000, Nebraska got $96,000,000, and Minnesota got 1 1/2 billion dollars.

NOTE—Nye used his powerful position on the Appropriations Committee to fight against every national defense measure until after Pearl Harbor.

RIVER JUMP BALKED

Cleo Timmons, 18, Mt. Sterling was being held in Columbus city prison after an attempt to jump into the Scioto river from the Main street bridge, Thursday. Three Columbus youths held the girl until a patrolman came to the rescue. Despondent because she had not heard from her husband, a Marine, for five weeks was given as the excuse for the rash act.

ASHVILLE

J. M. Kaiserman is vacationing at Magnetic Springs this week.

Ralph Cloud has purchased the dwelling on Main street known as the Mimi Kraft property and expects to reconduct the house in the near future.

Mrs. Mary Ecard expects to remove to Circleville Monday.

Jerry Eccard will make his home with Mr. and Mrs. Delmar White. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Riegel will remove to the home vacated by Mrs. Eccard. The Riegels recently purchased the dwelling from Mrs. Dallas Griffith.

Rev. Woodworth and his corps of teachers are conducting a vacation Bible school this week at the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Mary LeMay announced Saturday the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Vernadine to Mr. Bertrand A. Burkhardt of Cleveland. The wedding will be an event of June 30th. Miss LeMay was a former teacher in the Ashville schools.

Mrs. Ruth Bowers and daughters Judy and Jo visited with Miss Helen Bowers in Cambridge Thursday.

A good-sized crowd attended the first dance given by the Orlan Hines' band at Community Park

Thursday. The youngsters who make up the band are all from this community. It is hoped that they will be able to hold weekly dances in the park during the summer months.

Oil was discovered as a fuel and lubricant at about the time whale oil, which at that time was the main standby, was becoming scarce because of the wide dispersal of the whale.
